Headline:
A drab morning, brighter later.

Today:
A misty start this morning, remaining generally cloudy with limited brightness. Low cloud, hill fog and patchy drizzle will gradually fade through the morning, with brighter spells and sunny intervals developing in the afternoon. Light winds. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Tonight:
Patchy cloud and some lingering clear spells this evening. Areas of mist and fog developing overnight, with hill fog over the Peak District as cloud builds from the west. Cool. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Monday:
Another drab morning with areas of dense fog which will be slow to clear. Perhaps turning a little brighter during the afternoon before cloud builds from the northwest. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
A cloudy day Tuesday with outbreaks of rain. Wednesday drier and brighter, but hill fog developing, feeling cooler as winds freshen. Cloudy with a fresh breeze and rain Thursday.
